

Hodja was once the preacher in his town. He often argued with the mayor, who always disagreed with him. One day the mayor died, and the people came to Hodja. They asked him to say a prayer for the dead mayor.

"No, it's no use," said Hodja. "He never listened to me when he was alive."